

DesignNY Takes an Insider's Look at ... S&T Enterprises of Western New York

You're on vacation and it's six p.m. As scheduled, your outdoor lights go on automatically ... same time, every night. Wouldn't you rest easier with a more convincing strategy for giving your home an appearance of being occupied?

Or, you're at work and stuck in a meeting. It's four-thirty you're wondering if your child made it home from soccer practice safely. Isn't it possible to receive an automatic message, discreetly notifying you when your child arrives home?

Or, you've just arrived at work and realized you forgot to turn the lights off and the heat down for the day, again. Isn't there a better, automatic way to consistently conserve home energy use?

Or, you're traveling on business in the middle of a western NY winter. Wouldn't you have better peace of mind if you knew your family didn't have to come home from work and school to a cold, dark house?

Whether it's for increased safety, security or energy management, S&T Enterprises of WNY delivers streamlined, simplified home control with customized home-automation solutions. "Home automation, today, is a comprehensive linking of home theaters, lighting, whole-house audio, media centers and computers. There are even visual components with video. And, it's all on one system," says Shawn Lemay, owner. "It really allows your home to follow the pulse of your life."

The combinations are seemingly endless. Home intruder alarms activate entire lighting systems and fire alarms illuminate halls with smoke-penetrating lights. Pre-program home temperatures and lighting or regulate them remotely to maximize efficiency and comfort. Receive automated voice, text or e-mail messages when anyone enters the home. Even whole-house audio and video can be programmed to turn on and off or change stations with the fully-integrated system.

Complicated it is not. In fact, it's easy to use and S&T Enterprises of WNY offers highly-affordable solutions for every lifestyle, technology need and budget. For example, many of their lighting updates have pleasantly surprised clients with their affordability because they utilize as many of the existing fixtures as possible. And, on top of all this, most installations are completed in less than a day.

Experience your home's true safety, security, and energy-management potentials with a home-automation system from S&T.
